

Lilias Ahmeria named Aspire's Inspirational Woman of the Year 2014

With the knowledge, expertise and technology at her disposal, Lilias Ahmeria can help every member of the family with most conditions, which is why Aspire have named her as our Inspirational Woman of the Year 2014.

On hearing the news, Lilias said: "Thank you, Aspire. This is wonderful; it's such an honour and a privilege to have my work recognised in this way – I feel like I've won an Oscar!"

Aspire Editor, Elaine Ellis, said: "Autism is a lifelong developmental condition which affects more than half a million people in the UK; there are numerous individuals and organisations out there fighting to raise awareness of this condition, but Lilias is unique in that she provides solutions to the endless number of questions parents have regarding their autistic child. Using The Quantum iLife, Lilias can help every member of the family cope with, and also improve, their lives following the diagnosis of autism. I would encourage any and all Aspire readers living with a relative with autism to get in touch with her to see a significant improvement in the quality of their lives."

Aspire Managing Director, Claire Tipton, added: "When I heard about the technology that Lilias has, I was excited; excited because it can help so many people, not just those diagnosed with autism but their family and friends who are also affected by this condition. Autism affects the whole family so anything that can help is often viewed as heaven-sent. Like Elaine, I would encourage Aspire readers living with autism or an autistic relative to contact Lilias and see for themselves how The Quantum iLife can help them. However, I would go one step further and encourage anyone who feels their health could be improved to contact Lilias, as The Quantum iLife can help with a multitude of illness, ailments and diseases."

Previously, Aspire have also awarded Lilias with a Certificate of Recognition for Care and Support. On hearing the news, Lilias said: "I am truly flattered and when I first heard I'd won this Certificate of Recognition, I was quite moved. I've spent my whole life working and supporting people and have built up quite a reputation amongst the industry; but to receive this recognition out of the blue, from an outsider to the industry, I was moved. It is wonderful to know I'm doing a good job and to receive a pat on the back from Aspire!"

Tel: 01460 66990

Web: www.liliasahmeira.com

Email: liliasahmeira@gmail.com